

Social Media Suggested Wording

 This Autumn, watch out for these cat hazards Out and about Harvest mites In autumn, these tiny insects climb up long grass, bushes and trees waiting to sink their fangs into something warm-blooded. Signs of infestation can include skin inflammation and scratching. Mushrooms and toadstools Some wild mushrooms are highly toxic and if eaten, could cause kidney and liver failure. Home and garden Halloween treats Many of the jelly sweets people buy in for Halloween 'trick or treaters' contain the poisonous artificial sweetener xylitol which is poisonous to cats. And chocolate contains a stimulant called theobromine, which can also be toxic to cats. Fireplaces and candles Cats are particularly sensitive to smoke and fire.	<h3>Keeping Your Cat Safe from Autumn Hazards</h3> Calling all cat owners! Cats are curious creatures, and autumn brings several seasonal hazards that could put them at risk. Keep your cat safe by reading this infographic from our out-of-hours partner, Vets Now.
 This Autumn, watch out for these dog hazards Out and about Harvest mites In autumn, these tiny insects climb up long grass, bushes and trees waiting to sink their fangs into something warm-blooded. Signs of infestation can include skin inflammation and scratching. Mushrooms and toadstools Some wild mushrooms are highly toxic and if eaten, could cause kidney and liver failure. Trees and plants Conkers Conkers contain poison called aesculin which can cause drooling, vomiting, diarrhoea and abdominal pain. Ingestion can also lead to potentially fatal intestinal blockages. Acorns Acorns contain a chemical called gallicotannin that's toxic to dogs and ingestion can cause liver and kidney failure.	<h3>Keeping Your Dog Safe from Autumn Hazards</h3> Ever wondered what autumn dangers to watch out for with your dog? Our out-of-hours partner Vets Now have created this infographic giving the lowdown on what to keep out of your dog's reach to avoid any emergencies.
 This Autumn, read the signs of stress from fireworks Know the signs of stress Heavy panting or drooling Unexpected soiling Barking or hissing	<h3>Keep Your Dog Safe on Darker Nights</h3> As evenings get darker, walks can be trickier for you and your dog. Our out-of-hours partner Vets Now have created this infographic with practical tips to keep your dog safe in low-light conditions.

This Autumn, be prepared for the
dark nights

Many of us are restricted to walking our dogs in low light due to a whole range of commitments. But as it gets darker in the mornings and in the evenings, it's important to take precautions to ensure everyone stays safe.

Keep your dog safe

Firework Season Safety Tips for Pets

Loud bangs and flashes can make pets anxious. Our out-of-hours partner Vets Now have created this infographic to provide guidance on spotting stress from fireworks, as well as practical tips to keep your pet calm.